—— to MADISON. Washington.

1811, February 21, Washington. Attempt to smuggle in a vessel purchased for the ostensible object as a parlementaire or flag vessel, in which, by permission of Gen. Armstrong, a person was allowed to send some mathematical instruments and machinery. Had been charged with participating in the fraud. Vindicates himself and shows how injustice has been done him by misrepresentation, and which resulted in his being removed from office by Gen. Armstrong. 4 . 7 pages.

1811, February 25, Washington. Makes explanations concerning his conduct as agent of prize causes, which had been represented to the President in an unfavorable manner. Has invariably declined to take fees for himself or charged a commission. Gives further particulars respecting the smuggling of silk in the Happy Return, and vindicates himself from any complicity with the fraudulent proceedings. 4 . 4 pages.

1811, March 18, New York. Waits for instructions respecting his departure for France. 4 . 1 page.

1811, April 23, Washington. Gives a detailed statement of facts concerning his conduct while consul in Paris in those affairs in which he has recently been attacked. Annexed are certificates from masters of vessels declaring that his conduct in prize cases merits the approbation and protection of our Government. Also annexed is a copy of a letter from Gen. Armstrong notifying him of his appointment as consul, and another of the appointment of Alexander McRae as his successor. 4 . 11 pages.

1811, April 23, Washington. Duplicate of the certificates mentioned in the foregoing with copy of a friendly letter from Jefferson. * 4 . 3 pages.

—— to HAMILTON, PAUL (Secretary of Navy).

1812, January 10, Paris. Inclosing a letter from Matilda Tone, widow of Gen. Theobald Wolf Tone, respecting her brother-in-law, Arthur Tone, a common sailor on board an American ship-of-war. Thinks he deserves promotion. 4 . 2 pages.

of the Emperor. It is conjectured that Russia will make but a feeble resistance. 4°. 1 page.

1813, January 26, Paris. The death of Joel Barlow places in Warden's hands the affairs of the legation. Sends Dr. Stephens as confidential messenger; carries current news and summary of facts which are not prudent to commit to paper. Sends outline of a treatise on consular establishment, which he proposes to publish. 4°. 1 page.

1813, August 25, Paris. Gives a copy of a communication from the U. S. consul at Havre respecting a list of Americans detained as prisoners of war. William Parrie's case. 8°. 1 page.

— to CRAWFORD, WILLIAM H. Paris.

1814, June 6, Paris. Order for his removal from his consular duties by Mr. Crawford, and which he declines to obey before receiving authentic information of his authority. Followed by a letter to Monroe, Secretary of State, ceasing to act as consul, but awaiting instructions. [Copy.] fol. 6 pages.

— to MONROE, Secretary of State. Washington.

1814, June 10, Paris. Incloses copy of his correspondence with Mr. Crawford to serve as a defense of his determination to wait for official instructions with respect to his consular powers, which he has been ordered to relinquish by Mr. Crawford, and, as he (Warden) thinks, without legal authority. fol. 2 pages.

1814, June 12, Paris. Being informed by Mr. Bayard that he had seen the instructions as to his suspension, of which Mr. Crawford had refused him communication, he ceases from consular functions, but remains in Paris for further orders. [See letter from Warden to Crawford, W. H., June 6, 1814.] fol. 1 page.

- WASHINGTON, BUSHROD. Washington.
 1807, November 12, Mount Vernon. Apologizes for having neglected to settle with him for some wine he imported for him, and asks that the account be sent him. 4°. 1 page.
- Montpellier.*
 1819, September 14, Mount Vernon. Acknowledging letter of August 28. Will furnish, as requested, certain letters as soon as they can be found. Many of them mutilated by rats and damp. 4°. 1 page.
- 1820, January 31, Mount Vernon. Acknowledging letter of December 18. Makes excuses for delaying sending certain papers on account of the cold, as they are stored in an outhouse. 4°. 1 page.
- 1820, March 23, Mount Vernon. Has carefully examined George Washington's papers in his possession and sends inclosed papers of Madison addressed to him. Others may be found and forwarded. Has written to the chief justice to look the bundles over and inclose all he can find. 4°. 1 page.
- Philadelphia.*
- WASHINGTON, GEORGE, to JONES, JOSEPH.
 1780, May 31, Morristown. Complains of the apathy of Congress. The ill-timed adoption of measures and delays in the execution of them. The powers of Congress declining too fast for the consequence and respect which is due to them. Sees no possibility of giving Gen. Weeden any command out of the line of his own State. [Copy.] 4°. 4 pages.
- 1781, March 24, New Windsor. Acknowledging letters of February 21 and 27. Neglect of Congress to conform with the wishes of distressed States. Delay by the French commander at Rhode Island prevented the destruction of Arnold's corps during the debilitated state of the British fleet. The critical situation of affairs in Virginia and North Carolina. Fears of the inability of the French fleet to cooperate with the militia in maintaining a position in Hampton Roads and preventing succors to the British. Importance of the controlling power of Congress and jealousy of States. Without the compliance of the thirteen distinct States each pursuing its local interests they will be annihilated in a general crash. [Copy.] 4°. 7 pages.
- 1781, July 10, Dobbs Ferry. Acknowledging letter of June 20. Scarcity of horses. Clamor against Gen. Stenben. The command (Lafayette's) in Virginia can not be in better hands. His uncommon military talents. Equivocal state of affairs in Vermont. Their neutrality is the most we have to expect. Does not think the people have evil intentions, but certain leaders there have and will prevent our deriving aid. [Copy.] 4°. 5 pages.

WASHINGTON, GEORGE, to JONES, JOSEPH.

1782, December 14, Newburg. Expects Congress will receive soon an address from the Army on the subject of their grievances. Their discontent at the continued state of inactivity. The dissatisfaction of the Army great and alarming. Combinations among officers to resign in a body. Thinks Congress should dictate soothing measures. Patience and fortitude of the community and their great hardships. Efforts of officers heretofore to prevent mutinies among the soldiers. Spirit of enthusiasm is done away. If the civil officers of Government and military could fare alike with respect to emoluments the military would not be the first to complain. [Copy.] 4 . 4 pages.

1783, March 12, Newburg. Acknowledging letter of February 27. Temper of the Army, irritated at their protracted sufferings. Reports that they would not disband until they had obtained justice. Anonymous summons circulated among officers. The postponement of settling of accounts gives great uneasiness. Appeals to Mr. Jones to push the matter to an issue in Congress, and if delegates are opposed to doing justice scruple not to tell them they must be answerable if matters come to an extremity for all the ineffable horrors which may be occasioned thereby. [Copy.] 4 . 7 pages.

1783, March 18, Newburg. Urges the liquidation of the accounts of the officers and soldiers of the Army. Their sufferings. Obligated to anticipate their pay and run in debt. To disband men before their accounts are liquidated would set open the doors of jails and close them on seven years of faithful and painful services. Cautions those gentlemen in Congress who have no disposition to compensate the services of the Army, for nothing is too extravagant to expect from men who conceive they are ungratefully and unjustly dealt by. [Copy.] 4 . 5 pages.

— to GIBBS, CALEB.

1783, December 1, New York. Certifies to the services of Maj. Gibbs as volunteer and officer during the war, and his brave and discreet conduct. [Copy.] 4 . 2 pages.
